INTRODUCTION.

In making this volume, it has not been the aim of the author to furnish a substitute for the spelling-book, but rather to prepare an accompaniment to it, for the use of the higher classes in our schools. In itself, the exercise of spelling is not a very attractive one, and conducted as it too often is, it becomes very dull and monotonous. It is confidently believed that the arrangement of this book, and a due observance of the "Hints on Spelling," will do much to give the subject practical importance, and at the same time invest it with interest.

In the several collections, or groupings of words, the author has endeavored to bring together the most prominent words in each department, and, by a few suggestive questions, to give a practical bearing to the subjects, and make them the media of much useful information.

For most of the reading and spelling exercises in the middle of the book, under the head of "Miscellaneous Words," the author would acknowledge his indebtedness to a work* formerly published by A. S. Barnes & Co., and which he has been allowed to use freely.

The work is commended to teachers and committees, with the firm belief that its careful use will do much to secure proficiency in the branch under consideration, and at the same time attach to it an interest and importance not heretofore felt.

The various miscellaneous exercises in the book will, it is believed, readily commend themselves to teachers, and open a wide field for much general instruction in every-day matters, and thus make the work a desirable one as a basis of many useful Object Lessons. The skillful teacher will readily extend and expand the various subjects presented.

HINTS TO TEACHERS.

In teaching Spelling, the instructor should aim to give interest to the exercise by frequently varying the mode of conducting the same. But whatever course is pursued, the two following directions should be strictly adhered to:—

1. Pronounce the word distinctly; just as it would be pronounced by a good reader or speaker, with no undue emphasis upon any letter or syllable.

2. Allow the pupil to try once, only, on a word;

as all beyond will be merely guessing.

In order to secure the perfect attention of a class, and at the same time awaken an interest in the exercise, the following hints, which were first given by the author of this, in another work,* may be found useful:—

1. Read a short sentence distinctly, and require every word to be spelt by the class,—the first scholar pronouncing and spelling the first word, the next scholar the second, and so on, until all the words in the sentence have been spelt. After a little practice in this method, scholars will be able to go through with quite long sentences, with a good degree of accuracy and promptness. Many valuable truths and proverbs may in this way be impressed upon the mind, while attention is more directly given to orthography. The following may be samples:—

^{* &}quot;The Teacher and Parent."

A good scholar will be industrious and obedient.

If sinners entice thee, consent thou not.

Take care of the minutes, and the hours will take care of themselves.

A soft answer turneth away wrath.

2. It will be well, often, to make all the members of a class feel responsible for the accurate spelling of each and every word. If the first member of a class misspells the word given to him, let the teacher proceed and give out the next word, without intimating whether the first was correctly or incorrectly spelt. If the second scholar thinks the first word was not correctly spelt, he will spell it instead of the one given to him; and so on, through the class, each being expected to correct any error that may have been committed. If the first spells a word wrong, and no one corrects it, let all be charged with a failure. This method will amply compensate for its frequent adoption.

We will now proceed to speak of some points in relation to the mode of conducting an exercise with the slate. Most experienced teachers have, latterly, often adopted the plan of writing words; but, for the benefit of others, we will specify one or two modes.

Let the teacher select words from some studied exercise, either in the reading-book or spelling-book, pronounce them distinctly, allowing time, after each word, for all to write it legibly. After all the words have been given out, each slate may be examined separately and all errors noted; or, the members of a class may exchange slates, and each examine his companion's slate,—while the teacher spells the words correctly,—and mark the number wrong upon each slate. Or, instead of either of these, the instructor may call upon some one to spell a word as he has written it, and then request those who have written differently to signify it by raising the hand. Neither of these methods will consume much time, and either of them will be preferable to the oral method.

It will sometimes be the ease, that scholars will prove themselves quite expert in spelling long or difficult words, and yet make sad mistakes in spelling those that are shorter, and apparently much easier. To remedy this, it will be well, occasionally, to read slowly an entire stanza or paragraph, and require the members of a class to write the same upon their slates.

This course has its advantages.

Again, it is frequently the case that scholars are exceedingly deficient in ability to spell the names of countries, states, counties, towns, mountains, rivers, individuals, etc. Any teacher, who has not exercised his pupils on such words, will be astonished at the number and nature of the errors that will be committed by a class on the first trial. Let teachers who have overlooked words of this description, in conducting the spelling exercise, commence by requesting their pupils to write all the Christian names of their schoolmates, the names of the countries in their native State, towns in the county, and States in the Union. Though the result, at first, may be neither very satisfactory nor gratifying, the plan, if frequently adopted, will cause much improvement.

It may be profitable, sometimes, to request the members of a class to select, from a certain number of pages in a book, some ten or twelve words, which may seem to them of most difficult orthographical construction, which shall, subsequently, be given to the class as a spelling exercise. The prominent advantage in this plan results from the fact that each scholar will, in searching for a few words, notice the orthography of a much larger number,—selecting such only as appear to him peculiarly difficult. In this way pupils will, unconsciously as it were, study with interest a lesson in itself unattractive to them. Favorable results will attend such a course.

If a school-room is well furnished with black-boards, the words or sentences for the spelling exercises may be written on them. In this case, it may be well to have the exercise occur during the last half-hour of the day. Let the scholars be required to write the words, legibly, as soon as pronounced by the teacher. After all have written, let the teacher examine the work, and draw a line over such words as are incorrectly written, and request that all errors be corrected immediately after school is dismissed. It is very important that pupils should be required to write all such exercises in a neat and distinct manner.

At times it may be well to require scholars to divide the words into their appropriate syllables and to designate the accented syllable of each word; as, an-ni-ver'-sa-ry, me-men'-to, la'-bor, la-bo'-ri-ous. Occasionally this may be extended by requiring a complete analysis of the whole word, including, beside the above, the names and sounds of the several letters, the vowels, consonants, labials, dentals, etc.

Another method of conducting the exercise of spelling is the following,—and we may add, that, for more advanced schools, it possesses some advantages over either of the others named. Let the teacher write, legibly upon the blackboard, some twenty or more difficult words, and allow them to remain long enough to be carefully studied by the school. A few minutes before the close of the school, let all the words be removed from the board. Now let each scholar put aside his books, and provide himself with a narrow slip of paper. At the top of this, or upon one side, let him write his name, and then the words, as dictated by the instructor. After all have written the list of words that had previously been placed upon the blackboard, let the slips be collected, and taken by the teacher, who may himself, aided perhaps by some of his best spellers, examine the slips, and mark those wrong upon each. At some hour of the next day, let the teacher read the result to the whole school, stating the number of errors committed by the several pupils; after which, the papers may be returned for correction. We will suppose, for illustration, that, on some day, the teacher gives out the names of the months, days of the week, and seasons of the year; and that the following is a sample of one of the papers, as returned by the teacher, with errors marked:

AMOS MASON.

Eleven Errors.

January.
Feberwary.*
March.
April.
May.
June.
July.

August.

Septembur.*
Octobur.*
Novembur.*
Decembur.*
Sundv.*
Monddy.*
Tuesday.
Wensday.*

Thursday. Friday. Saterday. Spring. Sumer. Autum. Winter.

In conducting this exercise, let the teacher insist upon perfect distinctness in the writing of the words, and let it be understood that every letter not perfectly plain will be considered as wrong, and marked accordingly. It will be readily seen that a little skill, on the part of the teacher, in the selection of words, will make this a highly useful and interesting exercise; and the time for the announcement of the number of errors will be looked for with interest.

An attractive method, which may answer for oral or written spelling, is the following. The instructor pronounces a word, which is to be spelt by the first in the class, who will immediately name another, commencing with the final letter of the first word, which is to be spelt by the next scholar; and he, in turn, will name another word, and so on, through the class. If the words are to be written upon the slate, the same course may be taken, as to maining of words. Let us take, for illustration, the following words:—

Commotion. Nourishment. Theoretical. Labial. Language. Endeavor. Rhetoric. Calorio. Circumstances.
Sympathy.
Yellow.
Wandering.

An exercise of this kind will have its peculiar advantages, the more prominent of which will be, the awakening of thought and interest. After a little practice, the members of a class will be able to name words with a great degree of promptness; and an exercise of this kind will be made highly interesting and profitable.

In giving out long words it may be well, at times, to let the pupils spell by each giving a letter in its order, or pronouncing a syllable when finished For example, let us take the word orthography. You pronounce the word and the whole class repeats it. In rapid succession the pupils spell thus, the figure indicating the number of pupil:

thogra-p-h-y-phy-orthography (by whole class.) Another method which has its advantages is the following. Let the teacher dictate some thirty or forty words to a class, requiring the members to write them upon their slates. These words are to be carefully examined and studied by the pupils, who are also to be required to incorporate each word into a sentence, which shall illustrate its meaning and show that it is understood by them. After these sentences have been read, and erased from the slates, let the words be again dictated, to be written and examined with special reference to the orthography. An exercise of this kind will answer very well to till up time that would otherwise be unimproved. The words may be given on one afternoon, and the written exercises and the spelling receive attention on the next afternoon.

It will be well if the teacher will have a small blank-book in which to write such words as are frequently misspelt, or such as are not of very common occurrence, and make use of these words for the method above manned.

Another method, and the last we shall name, is the following, which may prove very useful in the higher classes of most schools. Let the teacher pronounce to a class several words of difficult orthography, or short sentences containing such words, the pupils writing the same upon their slates as fast as dictated. After the desired number of words and sentences has been written. the instructor may address his class as follows: 'Scholars, the words and sentences which I have just pronounced may require from you some study. Examine them carefully, ascertain the correct spelling and meaning of each; and when you have studied them sufficiently, erase them from your slates. To-morrow I shall give you the same exercise, and shall then expect you to write them accurately.'

Let us suppose that the following words and sentences should be given for an exercise of this kind:

Armistice.
Anchovy.
Automaton.

Acoustics.
Bronchitis.
Colporteur.
Conchology.

Hemorrhage. Beau ideal. Guillotine. Hemistich.

Thomas has an excellent daguerreotype likeness of his mother.

The dahlia is a beautiful flower.

He was a successful merchant and a skillful financier.

The glaciers of Switzerland.

There is a beautiful jet d'eau on the common.

There was a large giraffe in the menagerie. His loss caused great poignancy of grief.

It was a successful ruse de querre.

The police exercised strict surveillance.

This mode is well adapted for presenting words and phrases whose orthography is peculiarly difficult, and which occur less frequently than most words.

RULES FOR THE USE OF CAPITALS.

RULE I. The titles of books, and the heads of their parts, chapters, sections, and divisions, are usually printed in capitals. When the titles of books are quoted, only their principal words should begin with capitals; as, "Watts on the Mind." Inscriptions on signs and monuments are subject to the same rule.

RULE II. The first word of every entire sentence, and of every independent expression, or phrase, should begin with a capital; as, "Evil communications corrupt good manners."

RULE III. Proper names, and adjectives derived from proper names, should begin with a capital; as, America; American; Boston; Bostonian.

Rule IV. Titles of honor, office, respect, and distinction, usually begin with a capital; as, Chief Justice Marshall; His Majesty; General Washington.

RULE V. All appellations of the Deity should begin with a capital; as, God; Jehovah; The Eternal; The Almighty.

Rule VI. The first word of every line in poetry should begin with a capital.

Rule VII. The words I and O should be capitals.

Rule VIII. Any common noun used to denote an object personified, or an object to be made specially emphatic, should begin with a capital: as, "Cheered with the grateful swell, old Ocean smiles."—Milton. "In the Creed the same distinction is properly observed."—Harrison.

RULE IX. The first word of a direct quotation, so introduced as to form a sentence of itself, should begin with a capital; as, "He saith unto him, Feed my sheep."

RULES FOR SPELLING.

Rule I. Final f. l. or s.

Monosyllables ending in f, l, or s, preceded by a single vowel, double the final consonant; as, staff, mill, pass, muff, knell, gloss, off, hiss, puss.

Exceptions.—The words clef, if, and of are written with a single f; and gas, as, has, was, yes, his, is, this, us, pus, and thus, with single s.

Rule II. Other Finals.

Words ending in any other consonant than f, l, or s, do not double the final letter; as, mob, nod, dog, sum, sun, cup, cur, cut, fix, whiz.

Exceptions.—We double the consonant in abb, add, odd, egg, jagg, ragg, inn, purr, err, burr, butt, buzz, yarr, and some proper names. But we have also ab, (from,) and ad, (to,) for prefixes: and jag, rag, in, bur, and but, are other words that conform to the rule.

Rule III. Doubling.

Monosyllables, and words accented on the last syllable, when they end with a single consonant preceded by a single vowel, or by a vowel after qu, double their final consonant before an additional syllable that begins with a vowel; as, rob, robbed; fop, foppish, foppery; squat, squatter, squatting; thin, thinner, thinnest; swim, swimmer, swimming; commit, committeth, committing, committed, committer, committee; acquit, acquittal, acquittance, acquitted, acquitting, acquitteth.

Exceptions.—1. x final, being equivalent to ks, is never doubled. 2. When the derivative retains not the accent of the root, the final consonant is not always doubled; as, prefer', pref'erence, pref'ereable; refer', ref'erence, ref'erable or refer'rible. 3. Letters doubled in Latin are usually doubled in English, without regard to accent, or to any other principle; as, Britain, Britan'nic, Britan'nia.

RULE IV. No doubling.

A final consonant, when it is not preceded by a single vowel, or when the accent is not on the last syllable, should remain single before an additional syllable; as, toil, toiling; oil, oily; visit, visited; differ, differing.

Exceptions.—A few words derived from other languages double the l; as, tranquil, tranquillity; excel, excellence; cancel, cancellate, cancellation; crystal, crystalline, crystallize; metal, metalline, metallurgy, etc.

RULE V. Final c, k.

Monosyllables and English verbs end not with c, but take ck for double c; as, rack, wreck, rock, attack; but in general, words derived from the learned languages need not the k, and common use discards it; as, Italic, maniac, music, public.

Exceptions.—The words arc, part of a circle; orc, the name of a fish; lac, a gum or resin; and sac, or soc, a privilege, in old English law, are ended with c only.

RULE VI. Retaining.

Words ending with any double letter, preserve it double before any additional termination, not beginning with the same letter, as in the following derivatives; wooer, seeing, blissful, adding, gruffly, willing, shelly, hilly, stiffness, illness, strillness, shrillness.

Exceptions.—Certain irregular derivatives in d or t, from words ending in double ee, ll, or ss, (as fled from flee, sold from sell, blest from bless,) are exceptions to the foregoing rule.

RULE VII. Retaining.

Words ending with any double letter, preserve it double in all derivatives formed from them by means of prefixes; as, see, foresce; pass, repass, miss, amiss.

RULE VIII. Final II.

Final double l is peculiar to monosyllables and their compounds, with the few derivatives formed from such roots by prefixes; consequently, all other words that end in l, must be terminated with a single l; as cabal, logical, excel, rebel, dispel.

Rule IX. Final e.

The final e of a primitive word, when this letter is mute or obscure, is generally omitted before an additional termination beginning with a vowel; as, remove, removal; rate, ratable; force, forciblo; true, truism; rave, raving; idle, idling.

Exceptions.—1. Words ending in ce or ge, retain the e before able or ous, to preserve the soft sounds of c and g; as, trace, traceable; change, changeable. 2. So, from shoe, we write shoeing, to preserve the sound of the root.

RULE X. Final e.

The final c of a primitive word is generally retained before an additional termination beginning with a consonant; as, pale, palensss; edge, edgeless;

judge, judgeship.

Exceptions.—1. When the c is preceded by a vowel, it is sometimes omitted; as in duly, truly; but much more frequently retained; as in dueness, trueness, bluely, cycless. 2. The word wholly is also an exception to the rule.

RULE XI. Final y.

The final y of a primitive word, when preceded by a consonant, is generally changed into i before an additional termination; as, merry, merrier, merriest, merrily, merriment.

Exceptions.—1. This rule applies to derivatives, but not to compounds; thus we write merciful, and mercy-seat. 2. Before ing, or ish, the y is retained to prevent the doubling of i; as, pity, pitying; baby, babyish.

RULE XII. Final y.

The final y, of a primitive word, when preceded by a vowel, should not be changed into i before any additional termination; as, day, days; key, keys; boy, boyish, beyhood; joy, joyless, joyful.

RULE XIII. Ize and isc.

Words ending in ize or ise sounded alike, as in wise and size, generally take the z in all such as are essentially formed by means of the termination; and the s in monosyllables, and all such as are essentially formed by means of prefixes; as, gormandize, apologize, brutalize, canonize with z: rise, arise, disguise, supervise, surmise, surprise, with s.

Rule XIV. Compounds.

Compounds generally retain the orthography of the simple words which compose them; as, wherein, horseman, uphill, innkeeper, sky-light, plum-tree.

RULE XV.

Nouns ending in o, preceded by another vowel, form their plural by the addition of s; as, cameo, cameos: folio, folios; but if the final o is preceded by a consonant, the plural is commonly formed by adding es; as cargo, cargoes.

RULE XVI.

Verbs ending in y preceded by another vowel, on adding iny, ed, or s, do not change y into i; as, delay, delaying, delayed, delays.

Exceptions.—Lay, laid; pay, paid; say, said;

stay, staid or stayed.

RULE XVII.

The plural of words ending in y, preceded by a consonant, is formed by changing y into ies; as, sky, skies; fly, flies, &c. If a vowel precedes the y, the plural is formed by adding s; as, day, days; money, moneys; &c.

RULE XVIII. Usage.

Any word for the spelling of which we have no rule but usage, is witten wrong if not spelled according to the usage which is most common among the learned.

SYNONYMS.

"In all languages, particularly in those that are of a mixed origin, there are numerous groups of words which have the same general meaning. Such words are called Synonyms or Synonymous Terms. In the English language, for example, which derives so large a portion of its vocabulary from Latin, Greek, French, and other sources, the number of Synonyms is unusually great; and to this circumstance one of its principal difficulties may be attributed. For, in order to have a correct and critical knowledge of the language, we must know not only all the words which are synonymous, but also all the peculiarities by which they are distinguished from each other. For it is only in the expression of one general idea that synonymous words agree, and to this extent only they should be considered as equivalent in meaning. But it will be found, also, that they have, in addition to the idea which is common to them all, peculiar significations or appropriate applications of their own; and in these respects they should be considered as quite different words. In employing synonymous words, therefore, great eare should be taken to distinguish between their general meanings and partieular or peculiar applications. If two or more of them be employed to express one and the same idea, the most objectionable kind of tautology will be produced, namely, the unnecessary repetition of the same idea. And on the other hand, if their peculiar significations and appropriate applications be confounded, ambiguity and error will be the result. In a work of this kind it would be useless to attempt even to enter upon a subject so extensive and so important. All that can be done here is, to give a list of the principal syno nyms of the language; and as the subject is of importance, some examples will be given of the difference in meaning among words reputed synonymous. They will show the necessity of attending with care and strictness, to the exact import of words, if ever we would write with propriety and precision."* The following will furnish good spelling exercises, at the same time that they serve a good purpose in teaching precision in regard to the meaning of words:

Custom, habit.—Custom respects the action; habit, the actor. By custom we mean the frequent repetition of the same act; by habit the effect which that repetition produces on the mind or body. By the custom of walking often in the street, one acquires a habit of idleness.

Surprised, astonished, amuzed, confounded.—I am surprised, with what is new or unexpected; I am astonished, at what is vast or great; I am amuzed with what is incomprehensible; I am confounded by what is shocking or terrible.

Pride, vanity.—Pride makes us esteem ourselves; vanity makes us desire the esteem of others. It is just to say, as Dean Swift has done, that a man may be too proud to be vain.

Only, alone.—Only imports that there is no other of the same kind; alone imports being accompanied by no other. An only child is one who has neither brother nor sister; a child alone is one who is left by itself. There is a difference, therefore, in precise language, between these two phrases; "Virtue only makes us happy;" and, "Virtue alone makes us happy." "Virtue only makes us happy," imports that nothing else can do it. "Virtue alone makes us happy," implies that virtue, by itself, or unaccompanied by other advantages, is sufficient to do it.

Enough, sufficient.— Enough relates to the quantity which one wishes to have of any thing; sufficient relates to the use that is to be made of it. Hence, enough generally imports a greater quantity than sufficient does. The covetous man never has enough, although he has what is sufficient for nature.

Remark, observe.—We remark in the way of attention, in order to remember; we observe in the way of examination, in order to judge. A traveler remarks the most striking objects he sees; a general observes all the motions of his enemy.

WORDS.

The study of words and the investigation into their origin and meaning is full of interest. The following examples are given with the hope of securing more attention to the subject. The unabridged dictionaries of Webster or Worcester and the works of Dr. Trench, on the study of words, will be found very valuable for this purpose.

AFTER, a comparative from aft, behind.

ALDERMAN, was originally elderman.

ALOFT, on loft, that is, lifted up.

MISCELLANEOUS WORDS.

On the next one hundred and forty pages will be fund about two thousand words, which are frequently mispronounced, as well as misspelled. These words are alphabetically arranged, their meaning given, and the pronunciation indicated. After the words, under each letter, will be found a reading-lesson, containing the words given and defined on the preceding pages. This exercise will tend to give a clear illustration of the use or meaning of the several words, and at the same time establish their correct pronunciation.

Several of these exercises are followed by brief sentences, couplets, or stanzas, designed both as exercises in enunciation and spelling. It will be well to require the pupils, occasionally, to read these in concert. It is believed that the careful improvement of the lessons which follow will prove profitable and satisfactory.

REMARKS.

In respelling the French, en, on, &c., the letters ng are designed simply to mark the vowel as nasal, and are not to be pronounced themselves.

Italian A.—The sound of a in far, daunt, &c., and its sound in fast, pant, &c., being radically the same, is represented by the same character, ä. Yet, in words like fast, clasp, ask, pass, waft, path, pant, &c., the sound is not so much prolonged as in far; and in such words as dance, advantage, it is shortened still more.—Dr. Webster.

The accented syllable of words is designated by this mark (').

THE EXCURSION.

During a pleasant afternoon in June, I engaged to go on an exeursion with a very learned friend of mine, who was a great adept in the arts, and possessed no little acumen in the sciences. He seemed absolutely a complete master of acoustics, aeronautics, the alveolar theory of cavities, the Arabic language, and all the rules relating to causes in the court of admiralty. deed, so abstruse was he at times, that there was perceptible a slight degree of acerbity in his countenance if one did not see at once the force of his arguments: a peculiarity in him which seemed to confirm the adage, that irritability is the accompaniment of genius. To amass wealth and aggrandize himself was utterly repugnant to his character. Yet I would by no means absolve my friend from all error; he had neither the inventive genius of Archimedes, nor all the virtues of Agesilaus, king of Sparta; and some of his statements were merely ad captandum, so that he was fairly entitled to the appellative by which he was usually known.

But to return to the excursion which had been advertised. After going on board, and passing abaft the engine, our friend was struck by the abject appearance of a boy, whose shoes gave evidence of much abrasion, while the boy himself was completely absorbed in ar arithmetical exercise on the abacus. Here, again, I had an opportunity to witness the admirable traits in my friend's character, for he immediately began to advert to the aliquot part of a number, and explained the principle involved so clearly, that the boy, as we left, stood agape with astonishment.

The city was fast receding from view, and the panoramic appearance of the country, with the adjacent villages ornamented here and there by the anemone and beautiful acacia, induced us to secure a more advantageous position, where we could obtain an unobstructed view. Accordingly we made an ascent to the upper deck, where my friend found an empty arm-chair, which he secured, and began to animadvert on the style of the buildings in view. Being myself something of an amateur in architecture, I drew his attention to the manifest irregularity of the alternate columns of the Atheneum, and also to the great hight of the statue, in alto-relievo, designed to increase the amenity of the prospect from a distance.

One of the passengers was an accessory or auxiliary of a notorious burglar, appearing as savage as an Arab, and was viewed aslant with much curiosity. There was also an aeronaut and an arctic traveler, who had returned home after visiting the Antipodes, bringing with them a beautiful albatross, as white as alabaster, and a live asp, together with a hieroglyphic stone from Palestine, taken from the Aceldama, south of Jerusalem, and dated during the reign of Archelaus, king of Judea.

Our travelers were surrounded by an interesting group, consisting of a ci-devant Spanish alcaid, and his friend, the alcalde of a neighboring town, who had decided many an appellant's cause; and also a distinguished French avocat, formerly an obscure attorney in an arrondissement near Paris. He had won his way to fame chiefly by his strong opposition to the circulation of the assignats got up by the revolutionary government. He had but just arrived in the country, with his attaché, bound on a mission to the Argentine Republic, where he had been instructed to say to the authorities that it would be to their advantage to institute a duty, ad valorem, on all French fabrics. I further noticed among the company a celebrated physician and accoucheur, the owner of many a broad acre of arable soil, and a strong supporter of allopathy, who was aufait of all matters connected with his profession, having at one time displayed much skill on a gun-shot wound in the region of the aorta; and in cases of autopsy he was acknowledged by even his enemies to be unrivaled. Taking a turn with my friend round the boat, fore and aft, we observed that the machinery had begun to abrade, caused, as the engineer informed us, by the adverse fortunes of the boat the past year. He had just begun to alternate between red and white ash anthracite coal, and preferred the latter for steam purposes. He railed against the owners, charging them with aggrandizing themselves, and neglecting to procure proper advertisements necessary for the boat. The gong announced the dinner hour, and from the odors, we had a slight antepast of what was to come.

I passed the anchovy sauce to some one who was asking for it, after observing something like ants, or animalcules in the mixture. My friend was doing up matters ad libitum, showing some anxiety to ameliorate his condition at the expense of the boat. Opposite to us, I observed a young man, just from his alma-mater, in company with his aunt. I now heard some one ask for vocal music, and, to my surprise, my companion gave them a little arietta, with the allegro and andante; capitally done. I read in the Advertiser that an armistice had been agreed upon, after the detection of the ambuscade, by the avant courier of the general. But had the army been acclimated to that arid country, and been re-enforced by auxiliaries and other adjuncts, the difficulty to acclimate those recently arrived from the north would have been less. It was an enigma to me, why any one should advertise in a paper with hardly a hundred subscribers; when the editor of this advertising sheet, instead of being aggrandized by its proceeds, would soon be forced to the alternative of working or starving. The speaker at a political meeting, which was now in full blast in the cabin, was a great adulator of the administration, and an aspirant for office. He was also afflicted with the asthma, and accented most of his words on the antepenult. While charging the opposition with seeking to advance their own aggrandisement, his admirers supposed him to be endowed with a superior afflatus; while others, with faces awry, stood agast, denouncing him as a great demagogue, exclaiming, "Aha! after election, you will see who will be governor." A motion to adjourn was now made, and a majority voted "aye."

THE BANQUET HALL.

The most notable persons assembled at the banquet hall, were those from Baton Rouge, Buena Vista, Bayou Sara, Bourdeaux, a Bedouin Arab with a long beard, and a person who had been a prisoner at the Bastile. There was also a young man who had received his baccalaureate, having a little badinage with the basbleu, who produced a piece of basalt from her basket, found in her boudoir, at the base of a figure in bass-relief.

Paintings hung in profusion from the walls of the saloon. My beau ideal of a subject, would have been an angel in a beatific vision, with the bestial Beelzebub in the back-ground, troubled with the bronchitis, and lamenting his blasphemous course.

I saw a small number, however, a brief enumeration of which may not be amiss. A bel-esprit, covered with bijoutry, sitting beneath a tall tree, and handing a billet-doux to a bevy of ladies, who had come to take a salt-water bath near the buoy, which served as a beacon to the sailors. The next represented a brigand, whose cheek had often met the rude blast: he was sitting on a bowlder, viewing an army bivouac in the distance.

Passing on, we saw what appeared to be a bragadocio, of much brass and bombast, addressing a crowd under a booth on the Boulevards; while near by, a party was beginning to bowl on a bowling-alley. Further on, in a large frame, was the portrait of a member of the bureaucracy, who had charge of the bullion. Time had begun to blanch the face of one who was wont to bask in the sunshine of royal favor.

The guests had begun to bisect the blanc-mange, while the buoyant feelings of the beneficiary of the duke, led him to branch forth to the beau monde in a profusion of bon-mots, and eliciting thereby the bravos of the company. Retiring from the saloon, we saw in the yard of the arsenal some of the bombs which were afterward used by Oudinot to bombard the Eternal City.

AN OVERLAND JOURNEY TO CALIFORNIA.

During the year 1849, a citizen of New York joined (con amore) an overland company, bound for California. On his return, a short time since, he gave a brief account of the journey.

After a long cruise in the Gulf of Mexico, we cast anchor in the harbor of Galveston, in Texas. The captain in command, having the casting vote, decided that we should pitch our tents near the chateau of an old Carolinian, who, cognizant of our arrival, greeted us with great complaisance and courtesy. We purchased a few coverlets and blankets colored by cochineal, and a lot of caoutchouc or India-rubber cement for various purposes, also camphene to give us caloric to boil our cocoa, and a small cask of cogniac for medicinal purposes; and other goods and chattels which might contribute to our comfort.

Before proceeding further, we will introduce the reader to one or two of the prominent members of our company. We will begin with the ci-devant chancellor of one of the eastern states, a lawyer of the first class, whose last business, as a conservator of legal science, was, when acting in a committee with his compeers, appointed by the legislature to construe, comment, collate, and codify the rules in chancery. He was unfortunate enough to compromit himself in politics, so that he failed of an election to an office for which he aspired, and rather than begin again the practice of the law, he had accepted an appointment from General Taylor to an office in California.

The cynosure of all eyes was a Frenchman, courteous, complaisant, and conscientious, with an imposing costume and contour, having the affability of a courtier, with the judgment of a connoisseur, viewing matters generally couleur de rose; and while a member of the corps diplomatique in Rome, he left, after the carnival, for a summer excursion among the Cyclades in the Grecian sea. Returning to Paris, he found the value of coupons reduced so low as to embarrass his pecuniary affairs. He was then appointed to the command of a regiment of carabineers, and afterward to a regiment of curassiers; but finally doffed the cuirass on hearing the gold reports of California.

There was, also, one person not troubled with a conscience, a mere charlatan, who had figured, with his coadjutors, in the vicinity of the coliseum in a certain city.

This person, after committing a crime, of which the law takes cognizance, or is cognizable by the law, had succeeded in smuggling himself into the company, by reason of his being conversant with the route to be taken.

The company, which was comparable to a caravan or cavalcade, or whatever term the reader chooses, now took up its line of march, and following the directions of our cicerone, we made great progress during the first ten days. The cortege was imposing in appearance: a mounted corps took the lead, and the crescendo of their cytherean chant echoed through the coverts of the chaparral.

A collaborator of the colporteur, who acted as courier, found by chance a chalybeate spring, with a natural conduit. It was a delightful spot, with an abundance of grass, giving evidence of former culture.

We could not resist the temptation to halt and recruit both man and beast. Our cuisine was soon in operation, having purchased a calf, some wild fowls, and fresh cucumbers from the Indians. The Frenchman was engaged in a conversazione, commenting on the principles of communism with a devoted communist; while the comely collier, from a colliery in Pennsylvania, was complaisantly singing a couplet to a convivial coterie, which was followed by a burst of cachimnation from the group.

This was the last really green oasis we met with: all the route now to its termination was marked by suffering and privation, which was construed as a chastisement for our capidity.

The treasurer of the company, a covetous, crafty creature, had absconded during the night, probably with the intention of joining another party, taking with him a large sum of money belonging to the company, also a casket, containing a gold clasp and cameo, and a miniature of a Turkish cadi, set in diamonds. A crevasse in the river, comparably small, caused us much trouble. We had noticed hostile Indians covertly watching us for several days. A column of armed combatants, bent upon conquest, made a furious charge upon us, combating like regular soldiers. They were repulsed after a short struggle, and I found that my coadjutant had a serious cerebral wound on the left side of the cerebrum.

On, on, we tramped through those dreary solitudes, with nothing better than chaff for our animals, and obliged also to curtail our own provisions; treated with contumely by the Indians, and during the long still nights the silver moon and twinkling Cassiopeia, the roar of the distant cascade, all, impressed us with a feeling of utter loneliness.

Round the rough rocks the ragged rascals ran. The masts stood steadfast through the severest storm. The beasts straggled through the wastes and forests. He twists the texts to suit the different sects. I saw a man with a saw saw six sleek, slim saplings. Up the high hill he heaves a huge round stone.

THE DAGUERREIAN GALLERY.

The demand for daguerreotypes has, of late, given quite an impetus to this branch of the fine arts. Its demonstrable superiority over all other modes, in giving a true and life-like impression, is no longer a disputable question. I shall disarm disputants of all suspicions of my own disinterestedness, in a most decisive manner, when I refuse to designate or divulge the name of the artist, in whose gallery we spent a brief half hour, taking a desultory view of all we could discern.

Presuming the reader to have a reasonable detestation of too much detail, we shall not be so discourteous as to disoblige him, by assuming the function of the doughty distribist on the present occasion.

The first we observed was in a disadvantageous light, and represented a group at the dinner-table, partaking of the dessert which the waiter had begun to distribute. A decrepit gentleman seemed to enjoy the process of deglutition, while it was quite evident that his teeth had been unused to the action of dentifrice.

The image of a dishonest diplomatic individual next attracted our attention. It is said that he was disfranchised for the dishonorable deficit of ten thousand ducats which was detected in his accounts. It appears that his conscience was sufficiently ductile to enable him to conceal a draft of the above amount, and to disown with disdain all knowledge of the embezzlement, and to regard his disfranchisement as of little consequence.

It is demonstrably certain, by the distich appended to the design, that the person with the dolorous countenance in the act of taking a douche bath in the Doric structure, to improve the diathesis of his system, had met with a disaster which dislocated one of his limbs; or perhaps a draught of that despicable liquor which, we trust, is rapidly going into desuctude, may have had something to do with his present condition.

The most striking piece in the collection was a scene laid in Mexico, representing an army making preparations to debouch from a dangerous defile, where masses of debris, composed of disintegrated rock, that had taken the sun and atmosphere a long time to disintegrate, were precipitated with such a detonation or report, as to daunt the heart of any one capable of being daunted. The effects of the disaster were of such a demonstrative character as to devastate the country, depreciate the value of property, and cause the demise of many distinguished individuals.

Previous to our departure, our attention was arrested by the grotesque figure of a dramatist, instructing a debutant how to make his debut in the divertisement as a Dominican friar, riding on a dromedary, soliciting donative offerings from a dilettante, with a dahlia in his hand, and in the act of stepping from a French diligence.

The flash of the Drummond light, which came in at the windows, would dissolve and discomfit the lurking darkness so suddenly as almost to cause a deprivation of sight.

Amidst the mists and coldest frosts, With barest wrists and stoutest boasts, He thrusts his fists against the posts, And still insists he sees the ghosts.

His falchion flashed along the Nile;
His hosts he led through Alpine snows;
O'er Moscow's towers, that blazed the while,
His eagle flag unrolled and froze.

Slowly and sadly we laid him down, From the field of his fame fresh and gory.

I love my country's pine-clad hills,
Her thousand bright and gushing rills,
Her sunshine and her storms;
Her rough and rugged rocks, that rear
Their hoary heads high in the air,
In wild fantastic forms.

And where the finest streams through tangled forests stray, E'en there the wildest beasts steal forth upon their prey.

THE FRENCH PRESIDENT.

The empyrean rung with egregious and extraordinary plaudits when the enfranchised citizens of France, en masse, elevated Louis Bonaparte to the highest office in their gift.

Free from the ennui and enervating influences of confinement, we see him at once entranced and enamored with power; looking to the soldiery as the most powerful engine to enhance his authority, he, by some species of exorcism, contrives to eradicate republican tendencies, particularly with the etat-major, and substitute in their place opinions more congenial with his own ambition.

If he would enfranchise these whom he has disfranchised; if he would cease to enervate industry by his immense military establishment, which has contributed to exacerbate the feelings of economists; if he would abelish his system of espionage, and reduce to republican dimensions his exquisite etiquette and equipage, so enchanting to the elite, ere long he might obtain more than a European celebrity, and the friends of enervated industry, and universal liberty throughout England and America, would have occasion to exult over the prospects of the future. Probably the president considers the word republic a mere expletive, and, if it were possible, would most heartily wish it transferred to the vocabulary of Elysium, it having so often disturbed the equanimity of his mind. If the work he is said to have written is still extant, and if he have occasion to revise it, there will undoubtedly be many important emendations. The eleemosynary institutions in the vicinity of the Elysian Fields should be placed upon a footing so as to compare favorably with those of the English.

THE FETE CHAMPETRE IN PARIS.

The fête champêtre, which is sometimes held as often as once in each fortnight, is attended by citizens from every faubourg in Paris.

The sharp financier, in a fair way to accumulate a fortune, leaves finances and financial matters with his factorum, who is taking his first lessons in finance.

The fastidious foreigner, for the first time in France, travels fast in order to fraternize with his frères, and part with his florins at the fête.

The dwellers in fetid alleys and narrow fissures pour forth, with flaccid muscles, to flaunt and figure in their favorite walks.

The façade of a beautiful structure is decorated with various designs, and, as the festival approaches its finale, a facile speaker of broad facial angle, and of undoubted familiarity with forensic finesse, expatiates on the glories of the future. Art and nature have done so much for Paris, that there is a trace of fetichism discoverable in the religious sentiment of its inhabitants.

THE STORM.

A drowsy stillness steals along the plain; The leaves hang motionless on every tree; The twittering swallow glides along the ground, While cautious pigeons seek the sheltering eaver The geese, that o'er the green so stately stalked, Fly toward the gloomy west with heavy wing, And give a noisy welcome to the rain. The cattle from the hills come early home, And from the fallow ground the laborer turns, Long ere the hour of sunset, with an eye That reads the secrets of the heavens as well As though it opened first in Chaldea's land. Along the road the mimic whirlwind runs, And with its unseen fingers lifts the dust; The town-returning wagon faster moves, And down the hill, and o'er the sandy plain, The village Jehu makes the coach-wheels spin His horn's wild music swelling on the ear.

THE MAN IN THE RAILROAD CAR.

A TALL, gaunt man, with his head almost as high as that of a giraffe, was descanting with much gesture, in a railroad car, on some of the events of his life. He remarked that while he was a gendarme, during the French Revolution, he narrowly escaped the ghastly guillotine or gallows, and, without a groat, found his way to the highlands in Scotland, where he acquired a smattering of Gaelic, visited Iceland, took a glance at the Geysers, departed thence for Venice, where he had notice of a grant of land in his favor.

He then opened a gymnasium, was successful in business, and being now indoctrinated with republican principles, he determined to emigrate to America. But before leaving the old country, he made a short Eastern tour. At Constantinople he received a friendly grasp from the hand of the Grand-Vizier. Spoke of the gorgeous grandeur of a sunset on the Alps, as the rays of the sun glanced on the glaciers of the Grisons. Described the gairish gondolas of Venice, and other things not necessary to be recorded in this brief paragraph. He finally located on a farm near Galveston, in Texas, and understood enough of mineralogy to distinguish the difference between gneiss and feldspar, and enough of horticulture to graft his fruit-trees scientifically, using gum-arabic to protect the incision from the air. By the help of guano he raised fine grass, turned his grindstone by water-power, covered his hot-beds with glass frames, made no grimace when the tax-collector called on him, and he has determined, until the last gasp, to remain a guardian of republican institutions.

FOR ARTICULATION AND SPELLING.

A benevolent disposition is manifested in beneficent actions,

One important recommendation of politeness is, that it serves to promote human happiness.

I would earnestly solicit an expression of your opinion.

He is an illiterate man, and can not be expected to take an interest in literary matters.

The speaker had a guttural quality in his utterance, which he endeavored, by strenuous efforts, to overcome.

A model vessel is struggling amidst the war of elements, quivering and shivering, shrinking and battling like a living, thinking being. The merciless, racking whirlwinds, like frightful fiends, howl and moan, and send sharp, shrill shrieks through the creaking cordage, snapping the sheets and masts.

THE INVALID.

An officer who had retired on half-pay, and who had long been harassed by disease, which he had borne with heroism, was very hospitably received at the Hacienda of a Spanish gentleman in the Island of Cuba. The few hereditaments left him by the will of his father had been mostly disposed of, so that he plead guilty to the heinous crime of being poor. But hyperisy, and pride, or hauteur, and many of the hackneyed sins of the day, found no congenial place in his disposition.

During his halcyon days, he had cultivated poetry in his rural haunts; and while finishing a hemistich, was suddenly taken with a hemorrhage of the lungs.

A kind lady, a descendant from a Huguenot family, and who understood the principles of hygiene, became his nurse. She was a hydropathist to a limited extent, and also a homeopathist. But neither hydropathy nor homeopathy was of much avail at first. The disease continued to harass him. He was drenched with half a hogshead of water every day, and this sudden shock would cause a hiccough or spasm of the respiratory muscles. Our heroine, with her white handkerchief tied around her head, was almost a constant attendant at the homely hearth of the sick man, whose occasional heigh-ho indicated much restlessness. But after a short relapse, occasioned by a free indulgence of his appetite for halibut and herrings, he was gradually restored to health, through the kind and hospitable treatment of his physician and friends.

RAILROAD TO THE PACIFIC.

Initiatory steps have recently been taken for the construction of a railroad over the almost impassable region now lying intact between the Mississippi River and the Pacific Ocean. The indisputable impetus which would be given to the business of the country, by this incomparable international communication, is proved in an irrefragable manner by one who is an acknowledged illustrator of the movement.

The productions of India and the Indies, in transitu by this route, will indisputably have a freshness and flavor to which the insatiable gourmand is now an utter stranger. Here, then, is a theme on which the improvisatore can improvise, with ample materials for his The loss of life and property is incomparably greater on the overland route now than by any other. The emigrant, though inured to hardship, meets with irreparable misfortunes; and when inextricably and irreparably involved in trouble by almost infinite privations, and perhaps even by the interment of his wife or his child, whose infantile frame it was impossible for him to inure to the hardships of the journey, he is then in such an imbecile state of body as to make but feeble resistance to the inhospitable Indian. These illustrative remarks are designed to show the fate which irrevocably attends those who emigrate by land under existing circumstances. With a good railroad most of these difficulties are, of course, obviated.

The incongruous population of Europe, where inexorable tyranny sits like an incubus on the people, on arriving in this country can, instead of dooming themselves to inextricable and irrevocable poverty in the large Atlantic citics, and inhaling the irrespirable air of contracted apartments, go at once into the Western country, where, instead of choosing isolated farms, they may build up small villages, and establish schools, where an integral education may be obtained, and their children may become thoroughly initiated in republican principles. It is quite inexplicable that so many of the pioneers of the West should persist inexorably in remaining in isolation from each other, resting satisfied with the mere infinitesimal amount of information which their children receive in consequence of the disadvantages of their situation.

FOR ARTICULATION AND SPELLING.

Dividing and gliding and sliding,
And falling and brawling and sprawling,
And driving and riving and striving,
And sprinkling and twinkling and wrinkling,
And sounding and bounding and rounding,
And grumbling and rumbling and tumbling,
Delaying and straying and playing and spraying,
Advancing and prancing and glancing and dancing,
And thumping and plumping and bumping and jumping,

And so never ending, but always descending, Sounds and motions forever are blending, All at once and all o'er, with a mighty uproar,—And this way the water comes down at Lodore.

And dashing and flashing and splashing and clashing.

THE ARTIST.

As acquaintance of mine, who had some knowledge of judiciary matters, and who had the previous day been sitting as a juror in settling a question of jointure, made an appointment with me to take a short jaunt, for the purpose of visiting the rooms of a young artist.

On arriving, we found the young aspirant looking somewhat pale, having, by the help of jalap and a jocose disposition, but just recovered from an attack of the jaundice.

He received us in a jocund manner, and alluding with a jeu d'esprit to his recent illness, invited us to examine his fanciful productions. The painting directly in front of us was of a coarse character, but displayed much artistic skill in design and coloring. It represented a Hottentot kraal, with one of the natives, in the act of throwing a javelin at an animal resembling the jaguar of South America, and also in some points resembling the tiger of Java, while a group of women appeared to be cooking something in a huge kettle.

Further on appeared one of the leading Jacobins of the French Revolution: he was looking into a kaleidoscope, while in the foreground there was a beautiful jet d'eau. The last and most finished painting we saw represented the Khan of Tartary, reclining in a kiosk, situated on a knoll, witnessing the punishment of a delinquent by the knout. We left our artist to the quiet pursuit of his favorite occupation, fully impressed with the belief that he was not destined long to remain unknown to fame.

CONGRESS.

THERE are many laughable as well as lamentable events transpiring during some of the sessions of our national legislature. But during the last session of this learned body of legislators, in which the compromise bill was duly consigned to the waters of Lethe, there was not much occasion for laughter, or hardly any thing occurring to create a laugh, owing to the agitated state of the country, and the importance of the questions to be settled by the legislative wisdom of the representatives of the people.

About the middle of the session, a member of the house began to launch forth very learnedly into a wide field of discussion: he charged those with whom he differed in opinion as being lamentably deficient in human foresight, exposed the logic of his opponents, repeated a legend about literature, which was perfectly applicable to the subject, and made a lasting impression on the minds of some of his auditors.

One gentleman who listened to the speech, and who had visited Washington for the purpose of procuring a patent for the manufacture of lath, and litharge from a species of loam, spoke quite favorably of the effort of the member.

A valuable and influential member of the house was taken with lumbago in the month of March, in consequence of some exposure while attending a lecture at the Lyceum or a levee at the President's house. His physician prepared a lenient tincture, consisting of laudanum, licorice, lilac and lettuce leaves, which dissipated his languor, and restored him to his usual health; and he would soon have been in his usual place in the house, if a troublesome swelling had not appeared on his larynx, which required the lance of the doctor. His laundress brought the necessary bandages from the laundry, the boil was lanced, and the member was in his place in time to vote on an important question.

During the last week of the sitting, a lithographer, skilled in all the branches of lithography, exhibited some specimens of his art, which he had finished while in Europe. The likeness of the Pope's legate, a Scottish laird, and several of the literati, were admirably done. The stone on which he worked was made of lava, and the lever of lignum-vitæ.

MORNING SOUNDS.

But who the melodies of morn can tell?

The wild brook babbling down the mountain's side;
The lowing herd; the sheepfold's simple bell;
The pipe of early shepherd, dim descried
In the lone valley; echoing far and wide
The clamorous horn along the cliffs above;
The hollow murmur of the ocean-tide;
The hum of bees, the linnet's lay of love,
And the full choir that wakes the universal grove.

The cottage curs at early pilgrim bark;

Crowned with her pail the tripping milkmaid sings;
The whistling plowman stalks afield; and hark!

Down the rough slope the ponderous wagon rings;
Through rustling corn the hare astonished springs;
Slow tolls the village-clock the drowsy hour;
The partridge bursts away on whirring wings;
Deep mourns the turtle in sequestered bower,
And shrill lark carols clear from her aërial tower.

THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

The reader must be contented with a mere glimpse at the wonders in this renowned institution. It would require volumes to give a detailed account of all the curiosities in this central depôt of all that is rare and wonderful on our globe.

Here may be seen massive figures in mezzo-relievo; the original manuscript of the Magna Charta obtained by the barons from King John; abundant materials for experiments in magneto electricity; a thousand specimens of mineralogy, metallurgy, and medalurgy; paintings representing mausolean structures, the Maelstrom on the coast of Norway, and the Mirage at Reggio, in Italy.

Also marine productions, gathered by mercantile enterprise in maritime affairs, and articles of curious manufacture, requiring skillful manipulations. In the department of wax-work, one may obtain from the motley throng before him a measurable insight of virtue and vice, of magnanimity and selfishness, the details of which occupy so large a space in the histories of nations.

Among the figures near the haughty marchioness may be seen a mademoiselle, holding in her hand a bouquet made of the mignonnette and marigold. If it were possible for her mellifluous voice to be heard, it would soften the heart of the masculine marauder, whose lofty figure stands near by, and who had often been detected marauding on a manor in the north of England, but was finally secured after massacring the master of a vessel.

A naval officer, with a formidable mustache, was holding in his hand his own memoir, which stated that, after going before the mast, he was promoted to the station of midshipman. Being menaced by an enemy, while attempting to maneuver the vessel around the Island of Madeira, she ran aground on a mass of stones. And while in this unpleasant situation he was exposed to the infectious miasma of an adjacent marsh, and a malignant fever put an end to his earthly career.

A lord mayor of a metropolitan city will next attract the attention of the visitor. He once served as a common soldier in the militia. And if the report is true, he shortened his days by his excessive mania or monomania for Malmsey wine. Under a large marquee, or the opposite side, was one of the eastern magi, having a head but little larger than a mango. He was evidently not much of a maneuverer, and must have been indebted for his maintenance to the charity of the people.

One would be very likely to misconstrue the character of the melodramatist, if his apparently mischievous countenance, which seems to express a kind of menace, was any indication of what were his real feelings. But it is said that he was the mover of an important measure, tending mutually to meliorate the condition of the people, after the massacre of St. Bartholomew.

We must now pass rapidly by the mantua-maker in her merino shawl, the meager mandarin with his mask, the monk of the medieval ages over his matins, the skillful mechanist with his head filled with mensuration, and who was killed by a missile in a melee caused by the discovery of a fraudulent mortgage.

Moloch, and Melpomene, and the author of a clever melodrame, were reclining on an artificial mall, at the foot of a miniature mountain, each with a monostich overhead, so that their functions might not be misconstrued by the visitor.

In this endless melange, there was a microscope of such magnifying power, that the smallest molecular monads were made to appear of great size. A singular stuffed animal, which it is impossible to describe, stood near the ornamental mausoleum. It had formerly been in a menagerie, but died of murrain or some other disease, or in consequence of partaking too freely of Madeira-nuts, and a morceau of magnesia, which was disguised in vegetable mucilage and molasses. A mandamus was issued against the keeper for his neglect, and he was muleted in a large sum by the court.

EVENING SOUNDS.

Sweet was the sound, when oft, at evening's close, Up yonder hill the village murmur rose. There, as I passed with careless steps and slow, The mingling notes came softened from below: The swain responsive as the milkmaid sung, The sober herd that lowed to meet their young, The noisy geese that gabbled o'er the pool, The playful children just let loose from school, The watch-dog's voice that bayed the whispering wind, And the loud laugh that spoke the vacant mind: These all in soft confusion sought the shade, And filled each pause the nightingale had made.

THE NAIVE YOUNG MAN.

A NAIVE young man, who had been sent to a normal school, was far more fond of reading poetry about the nereids, or naiad and naiades, than of understanding the difference between the zenith and the nadir. His naivete, however, gradually disappeared after he naively consented, during a recess of the school, to assist the keepers of a menagerie in capturing a strange-looking nondescript.

For, while attempting to throw a noose over the horns of this production of nature, he was nonplused; and while in this state was violently thrown upon the ground, receiving a severe bruise on his nasal organ, and another on the nape of his neck.

When taken home, he was troubled with a nausea to such a degree, that his stomach began to nauseate all kinds of food, and even nauseated catables that were never considered nauseous; such as the nectarine, and the kind of apple called nonpareil.

A nervine preparation was administered to him, which had the effect of quieting his nerves; so that he was able to sit day after day, with his negligee on his shoulders, reading in the work of an interesting narrator stories and anecdotes about the nuptials of the necromancer; the travels of the Pope's nuncio, engaged in national affairs; and an account of the Nicene Creed, composed by the Council of Nice.

The uncle of the young man endeavored to negotiate a loan in order to defray the expenses of his nephew. But he was not a very good negotiator, and the person with whom he supposed he had negotiated informed him afterward, that the terms of the negotiation were not sufficiently definite.

GREENWOOD CEMETERY.

In this delightful resting-place for those who have passed the ordeal of death, repose the remains of many who have officiated in high stations, and whose souls may now be endowed with more perfect organizations, and be officiating in far higher stations in the spirit-land.

During the calm summer evenings, when Orion shines forth, and Oberon is out with the fairies, and the gentle odoriferous breeze fans the sultry air; at such a time one can almost commune with the spirits of the dead.

When the sky is not overcast, and when the ob-servator has not already overtasked his physical powers, he will find, after being obliged to ascend the highest elevation, an oceanic view which amply repays him for his exertions. Where one is troubled with onerous or oppressive obesity, he can gain the same hight with less fatigue by ascending more obliquely.

By-the-by, we will oblige the reader, who may be anxious for the preservation of his eyesight, by stating that, during a lecture at the Odeon by a celebrated oculist, he remarked that the act of looking intently upon objects at a distance tended to produce ophthalmy and ophthalmic diseases.

In passing near the center, one may observe the monument of an outre author of a somewhat occult organum. A little further on may be read the obituary notice of one who had predilections in favor of an oligarchical form of government, and who wrote an olio, which was published in an octavo volume, in which he explained his views of oligarchy.

A certain person, who officiates in a high judicial station, thought proper to oppugn the views of the author. He pronounced them as being ominous of the fate of the republic, and an overt attack upon the government

THE MENAGERIE.

HAVING from childhood a penchant or predilection for zoology, I accepted with pleasure the invitation of some friends, who proposed to patronize the proprietors of a menagerie. A large tent was pitched near a beautiful parterre; and on the outside of it there was posted a printed programme or list of the animals and the performances. Our slow progress in getting into the tent particularly tried our patience, owing to the efforts of some who were anxious to pass ahead of others. It was one of the largest collections of wild animals that had ever been exhibited in the country. The puissant manager, who was a sort of poetaster, made an extemporaneous prologue to the patrons, winding up with a peroration about the rules and regulations with the grace and prestige of a modern prima Having passed on toward the center of the tent, we observed the white bear panting from heat. while the elephant from Punjaub was coolly taking his pulverulent food with his proboscis. There was an animal which at a distance looked like a pegasus; but on approaching nearer to it we found it to be a kind of palfrey, which was eaught on a plateau in Mexico. The animal had a huge pannier on his back, filled with patent purificative drugs. By the side of this depot of potable medicines, there stood a pretty petit-maitre, recommending with great protestations the peculiarity of each article, and producing the testimony of a physician and one skilled in pharmaceutics as to their curative virtues in cases of phthisis, pneumonitis, inflammations of the peritoneum, the pyloric orifice, and the pharynx.

TONE, BULL, UNITE.—AN"GER, VI"CHOUS.—C as K; G as J; S as Z; ČH as SH; TH as in THIS.

Another preparation was of great use in palatial affections, relieving the system from the poignancy of pain, and restoring it to its pristine vigor. He portrayed with great pretense the wonderful puissance of a piquant, placid plaster in removing latent poison and purulent matter from the blood. This last antidote was made of pigeon berries, piony leaves, and phosphorous acid. In close propinquity to us, there was a puerile pastime, which afforded much pleasurable excitement to a group of boys. An orang-outang, with a peruke on his head, seemed to feel as much pride as a premier in his premiership. He was making a pony practice a pirouette; and during the process he caused the animal to prance in such a manner as to throw him off, and thus ended the pantomime. A petrel and paraquet, perched on a pedestal, were endeavoring to propitiate the company by their vocal powers. While the tent was filled to its utmost capacity, a prebendary, who was a distinguished prelate, was robbed of his pocket-book. The person charged with the act attempted to prevaricate, but a magistrate present peremptorily ordered an officer to arrest him. Some time afterward he was sent to the penitentiary, as a propitiation to the violated laws of his country. As we were passing on, for the purpose of viewing the largest animals, we were struck by the appearance of a patient looking creature, with a large plait in his mane, sitting quietly on his posteriors. By the influence of the plenipotentiary at the court of the Sublime Porte, the proprietor propitiated a Turkish pacha, so that he consented to part with the animal after receiving a large pecuniary consideration. I purpose to describe a nondescript, for the procuration of which the manager was indebted to a Polynesian potentate, whose pariahs were enabled to capture it at the foot of a precipice. This animal was very punctilious about his food, eating enormous quantities of produce, and making a noise, when attacked, almost as loud as the report of a Paix han-gun.

A great number of persons were present, whose patronage contributed to the prosperity of the concern.

Among others, we noticed the Parisian, who lectures ? on pathetism, psychology, and Parnassian poetry; and also a person who had published a prospectus for a new paper, from the tenor of which one is led to suppose that he aspires to the position of a general pacificator, by proposing pacificatory measures for the pacification of the extremes of all parties. We make no pretension to prescience, or of being a prophet, or of being endowed with a spirit of prophecy; yet, without any prejudice against this parvenu, we do prophesy that he will not succeed, unless matters progress differently from what they usually do. We further noticed the prothonotary, with his protégé and paramour, prettily dressed in her polonaise; the pseudo provost with his portfolio, who seemed desirous of having precedence of others; the honored pastor, with his prayer-book under his arm; the pedant and plagiarist, whose plagiarism was well known. Having been convicted of plagiary, by the testimony of a member of parliament who thoroughly understood parliamentary matters; and after pairing off with a member, produced at a bookstore the preface of a work which the above person had copied verbatim: a transaction without precedent in literary pilfering.

The posthumous works of a prescient philosopher, who had elaborated a theory for promulgation respecting the influence of comets on the Pleiades and Pisces, were pilfere! from by the same person.

In a kind of portice there was a piano-forte, with a large pedal attached. The music from the instrument was very exhibitanting, and well adapted protempore as a preventive of despondency.

After looking at four more rarities, one of which was eaught on a prairie, another brought from Polynesia, the third from the Spanish peninsula, and the last an enormous porpoise, which was kept in water, we went into another apartment filled with various curiosities and works of art: A portrait of a Roman procurator, which was painted at a time posterior to the building of the temple of Janus; a beautiful palankeen; an ancient treatise on palmistry, written during the palmy days of Rome; a picture of the plebeian who displayed such heroic valor at the battle of Pharsalia: a mammoth panorama; articles of porcelain, papier-mache, and papyrus; a silk parachute, that lay directly in our path; an ancient stone pestle, which perchance was used to pulverize grain; and a pinchbeck canister filled with pouchong tea, which was past use from the loss of its freshness

As this was the season of the year for the celebration of pasch or passover, or feast of Easter, many of the children had pasch-eggs of various colors. At this stage of our visit the manager made a peremptory announcement that the pyrotechnist, who was always punctual in exhibiting his skill in pyrotechny, would commence the display on the ringing of the bell. After leaving the exhibition, we overheard a person reading from a paper something about the palladium of American liberty. We supposed, from the manner of his reading, that he knew but little about punctuation, or the rules which enable one to punctuate correctly. And he probably did not know the distinction between the preterit or perfect tense and the present participle, and would, of course, be unable to name the parts of speech of such words as pant, pare, parse, pasture, per diem, perquisite, persiflage, phalanx, Philistine, pierce, piquancy, plover, poignant, poignantly, punctilio, puncture, pyrites, and pythoness.

THE OAKEN BUCKET.

How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood,
When fond recollection presents them to view!
The orchard, the meadow, the deep-tangled wild-wood,
And every loved spot which my infancy knew;
The wide-spreading pond, and the mill that stood by it,
The bridge, and the rock where the eataract fell;
The cot of my father, the dairy-house nigh it,
And e'en the rude bucket which hung in the well.
The old oaken bucket,—the iron-bound bucket,—
The moss-covered bucket which hung in the well.

THE EMIGRANT.

An emigrant who had but recently arrived in this country, and who was hardly qualified to decide upon all questions which might arise, complained with reason against the owners of vessels for allowing the captains to crowd their ships with so many passengers, thereby vitiating the quality of the air.

He stated that when he came to this country, about a year ago, there were too many in the vessel, and that a few of the passengers were sick, and were obliged to take quassia and quinine, and other medicines. He described the sensations of the emigrants as they approached the shores of the new world. They were all on the qui vive to eatch the first faint glimpse of the country, which was to them the quintessence of their present hopes.

After arriving at the quarantine, the qualms he had felt subsided; and while quarantined in the bay he had an opportunity to quaff a quantity of fresh water, which invigorated him very much. On arriving at the quay in the city, a quidnunc on board was observed, taking notes with great alacrity.

THE RESTAURANT.

In a certain city there is a temperance restaurant, which is a good model for other establishments of a like kind. The restaurateur, who has abundant resources, is enabled to retail his rare and redolent dishes in a manner quite reputable to himself, furnishing every thing requisite for a rational entertainment.

In a recess one will recognize, at the proper season, raspberries, fresh raisins, radishes, and materials for a ragout; also a large reservoir, filled with water, to rinse the dishes not already rinsed. No rancor or rancorous feeling is exhibited here, no rude ribaldry or ruffianism, or any thing tending to roil the disposition is tolerated.

The ruffian and the ranchero, who is raised at the rancho, and is given to rapine, can monopolize all the romance pertaining to reckless lawlessness.

Having an inflammation of the retina of one eye, which was referable to the excessive use of that organ, I had occasion to procure a receipt or recipe at a drug store while on my way to a temperance meeting; I also purchased some resin, and a resinous substance of much redolence, which was somewhat roiled; a little rouge, which I rarely had occasion to use, and a reliquary completed my purchases.

There was a large number of persons present at the temperance meeting, all of whom seemed inspired with the righteousness of their cause. The colonel of a regiment had left his rendezvous to attend the gathering, and was loudly called upon for a speech.

He said the question before the audience was rather a recondite one to him, that he could make a reconnoissance more easily than a speech; but, if they would be satisfied with his mode of ratiocination, he would go into what he considered the rationale of the subject. The revocation of the license laws, if they were revocable, was highly desirable.

He exposed with some raillery the rodomontade to which some persons had recourse, in order to bring about a rupture among the friends of the cause. He said it was a ruse of the enemy, and that a reptile that crawled in a ravine, or a well-rouged roué over his roulette or rouge-et-noir, had higher claims to reason and common sense than the person whose influence tended to undermine the foundations of society.

Another speaker declared, with a loud resonant voice, that he would sooner repair to a raft, relinquish his claims on society, and live a recluse, without recognizing any one, than go through the route and routine of the bacchanal. After a short respite, a Rechabite spoke with rapture of the reciprocity of feeling exhibited in this righteous cause between the different societies.

He distinctly recollected a person of the old regime, whose strong breath was recognizable at quite a distance, but who considered his condition reparable, and was at the present time reputably engaged in a profitable business. The different speakers pronounced the following words improperly, viz.: Raca, rajpoot, rara avis, rasp, ratio, recherche, recitative, reckon, recognition, recognizance, recognizee, recognizor, redolency, relay, remanded, repertory, resonance, resume, reveille, rialto, roquelaur, rouleau, rout, and ruse de guerre.

BOOKS.

The reader who is fond of books, may find some satisfaction in the following brief description of a lot of miscellaneous works, which the writer of this exercise had the opportunity of examining while at a bookstore. The books which first attracted our attention were those of a theological character.

A treatise by a learned scholiast on Passages of Scripture in the Septuagint, received the sanction of the Jewish Sanhedrim. A vocabulary was appended to the work, giving a full definition of the following words, viz.: Sabaoth, sacerdotal, sacrament, sacrifice, sacrificing, sacrilege, sacrilegious, sacristy, sanctuary, shrive, solemn, soothsayer, surplice, surpliced, shekel, and Shiloh.

The author of the next work had been a sojourner for a short time at the court of the Shah of Persia, whose sovereignty was more unlimited than that of any other sovereign. He related the incidents of a sortic made by a Sepoy, who was a sergeant, and a great strategist. A subaltern officer was wounded during the maneuver, and was carried in a sedan to a spa, which was on a steppe at no great distance.

The biographies of a Saracen, a Turkish seraskier, a Seythian, and a treatise on the Selavonian Language, contained but little that would interest the American reader.

A work on Dietetics contained important suggestions. The author stated that a person who would subsist on fruits that contained a portion of sugar or saccharine matter, and such vegetables as salsify and spinach, and suffice his appetite with a small quantity of meat, would have more suppleness of body than the Sybarite, who pursues a suicidal course by eating saline substances, salmon, sausages, and highly seasoned sauce.

A book, written by a subtile student of medicine, recommended a daily siesta as a good sedative for splenetic persons, and gave a recipe for making an excellent salve to soften scirrhous affections, and remove the slough from troublesome eruptions. A preparation of sarsaparilla, spikenard, spermaceti, and other materials, was considered as a potent specific for the solace of somnolent persons, and for individuals troubled with somnambulism. It was also recommended as a stomachic, and as being good in cases of stricture and structural derangement.

The work of a sapient statistician and shrewd agriculturist treated of sterile soils, and stating that if soot and the contents of sewers were strewed over the soil without stint, after the sward was turned under, the stratum below would be much improved. It was also suggested that the farmer should strew a common saucer full of soot around the roots of each fruit-tree, and make free use of the syringe in removing every species of insects.

A tract on Astronomy, by a learned savant, maintained a peculiar theory in reference to Sagittarius and the sidereal regions. Another, by a mere sciolist, treated of the sagittal suture and the sclerotic coat of the eye; and a third, on Geology, described the structure of schist, sienite, the stalactite, silicious formations, and presented a long article to substantiate a subtile theory in regard to the subsidence of land and water in various places.

A small pamphlet, recently stereotyped, contained advice for those involved in the sphere of squalid powerty. It stated that beneath all the squalor, there was a substratum of humanity identical with that of the refined and gifted; that the spectacle of men of stalwart stature being obliged to saunter about, and ofter failing to procure the means of sufficing the wants of their families, was an evidence of the stupefied state of society on this subject.

The industrious female, who continued to sew steadily until she had sewed enough to remove the hue of health from her countenance, could not even then be free from the seathing influences of want.

A soporific satire of a would-be satirist presented nothing significative of good judgment or sense. It was sillily contrived, and would easily satiate a person of refinement. It represented the office of a seneschal as a sinceure, and the soirce or sociable over which he presided as being attended by supple slaves, who assisted the sinceurist to squander the surplusage of his master's larder.

It was quite a relief to turn to the salutatory oration of a young man endowed with spontaneity of thought and suavity of manners. He said that health was often sacrificed by the imprudent scholar; that a little learning sufficed one with a saturnine temperament; that good students were scarce; that some of those who were under the surveillance of professors and tutors contrived by some subtilty or solecism to escape censure. That the shibboleth of party was of but little force with the Southron or the Northener.

A small vocabulary, consisting chiefly of musical terms, gave the spelled pronunciation of every word except the following, viz.: soprano, staff, sentient, siren, sonata, sopranist, suasion, surmise, souvenir, specious, shaft, sculpture, storied, stereotype, and staccato.

A salmagundi or medley had in it an endless number of subjects. It narrated the adventures of a soi-disant traveler, who was known by a singular sobriquet, and stated that, while traveling in the suit of an embassador, he was much annoyed by the sirocco. The author also dilates upon sinecurisms, statics, a superstratum of serried rocks on the coast of Norway, a method of measuring the superficies of spheroid figures, the philosophy of the learned Stagirite, a theory of the influence of southerly winds on vessels going southward, and also giving a brief enumeration of the qualities of sumac.

In a work published by a careless printer, the following words were improperly spelled, viz.: sabot, sans, satyr, seathed, seine, senile, seniority, sierra, silhouette, simultaneous, simultaneously, sine qua non, sine die, slanting, slough (a mud-hole), sloven, soapsuds, socage, spaniel, sparse, specie, stanch

Also stanchion, statue, stevedore, stirrup. stiver, strategie, striped, suffragan, suicidally, synonym, synonymous, and Swedenbor ian

THE LUNATIC ASYLUM.

The painful sensations one usually receives on visiting a lunatic asylum, are often partially dissipated by the grotesque appearance and desultory remarks of the unfortunate beings there assembled. A person who was deeply interested in improving the condition of the insane, gave a few details of a visit which he made to one of these establishments.

An individual who had written a work on therapeutics, and who had occasionally a transient gleam of reason, was sitting in a tranquil state of mind, preparing, as he stated, a tineture for the trachea and tympanum. It is reported that he was seized with a trepidation while adjusting a tourniquet, so that a surgeon could examine the trapezium, which had been displaced.

The tedious nature of the operation threw him into a kind of trance. He was found the next morning traversing the fields, and his friends were obliged to perform the sad task of taking him to the asylum.

One who had been the treasurer of a company, wore on his head a tarpaulin, calling it a tiara. He had three-pence in his hand, and considered it a vast sum or treasure, which would enable him to traverse the universe, thwart the purposes of tyrants, and deliver the people from the tedium and thralldom of servitude.

Another, who said he was a troubadour, had what he called a tambourine and trombone. He wore on his head a textile fabric, which he called a trophy, demanded tribute of those who came toward him, and said they would have a grand tableau behind the tapestry, when every body was tranquilized.

One who represented himself as a physician, had a composition which would relieve the torture of tic douloureux. It was made of the triturated shell of the tortoise, transparent treacle, juice of the tomato, tepid water, tokay, tapioca, and pulverized tripoli. A tenderloin was to be eaten immediately after taking it, and if the victim was a member of Congress, he must vote against the tariff, in order to escape the taunts of the democrats.

One person, apparently about forty years old, had been a great tourist. He had heard Te Deum sung at St. Peter's Church, in Rome; made a tour through the eastern part of Europe; dined at the table d'hôte of a French hotel in Constantinople; witnessed the tournament; been driven by the trade-winds, in a tiny vessel, through the turmoil of the troublous waves; was sometimes in the trough of the sea, then on billows mountain high.

The last unfortunate being we shall describe was a tragedian. He had a large tassel hanging from his head, a truncheon was in his hand, and while standing on something like a trundle-bed, was making a flaming soliloquy, sometimes speaking quite touchingly, and then suddenly assuming a tigrine aspect. The following is a specimen:

That I have ta'en away this old man's daughter, is most true.—Off! to the toll-booth with the topographical engineer!—Why trisect the triton who comes trophied from the wars?—Gently, the travesty was travestied! 'twas trebly done!—Where is the tortious tribune, whose tactile touch no trio could appease?—Ah! down with telegraphy!—'Twas by no fault of ours, no tenet, the feeble tenure of his life was held.—Tradition does not tergiversate.—The tortile tortuous terpsichorean has gone to terra incognita.—Transalpine friends will meet.—But who sings treble here?

FOR ARTICULATION AND SPELLING.

When Ajax strives some rock's vast weight to throw, The lines, too, labor, and the words move slow.

When a twister, a twisting, would twist him a twist, For twisting his twist, three twists he will twist; But if one of the twists of the twist doth untwist, The twist that untwisteth, untwisteth the twist.

THE LOUVRE IN PARIS.

No one who goes to Paris should fail of visiting the Louvre. Here are unique and unrivaled paintings, unsurpassed by no others throughout the world. They are not only unexampled in regard to their finish and execution, but they have received the unanimous approbation of the amateurs of Christendom.

Though unasked, we will nevertheless assist the uninitiated visitor, if he will not consider it uncourteous and uncomplaisant on our part, in his stroll of observation through this unappreciable gallery.

On the left, as you enter, is the portrait of Napoleon, who seems to possess a kind of ubiquity in the French mind. The unanimity of opinion throughout France in reference to this man is truly astonishing. Though he trampled upon the unalienable rights of the unhoused Frenchman; though he was unconscientious and unconjugal in his domestic relations; though unstanched blood saturated the soil of Europe; yet we find the prestige of greatness still clings to his name. No person of unvitiated taste will gaze long on the lineaments of one who is now in some measure unmasked before the world.

Underneath the portrait of the ultramontanist was placed, probably undesignedly, that of John Knox. The next piece, though uncomely and uncleanly in appearance, is not uninteresting as a work of art. The painter of the last-mentioned piece was an undesigning individual, and was unassociated with any one in business, owing to the large number of unliquidated claims against him.

If the visitor is uninterested so far, let him take a glance at the statue of the person who was favorable to ultramontane doctrines, and who sent the ultimatum of the government to the Emperor of Russia, after he had published his ukase—a document which remained unappreciated by the nations of Europe.

Umbrageous trees surround the undaunted and unchastised man, who claimed to have discovered the planet Uranus. And the usage he has met with in consequence of his audacity will be a salutary example to others.

The virtuoso, with his valet or valet de chambre carrying a valise, a violoncello, and a visard or visor, appears as though he had been afflicted with the varioloid. He was probably too venturesome, and neglected to procure vaccine matter, which possesses much virtue, and is valued as a preventive of the above disease.

Vast and varied were the attainments of the noble viceroy, whose veracity was unquestioned, and who repelled the vituperation of a vitiated voluptuary, who considered himself vastly superior to the rest of mankind.

He was accustomed to vaunt of his own valor, but his voluptuousness, and other vitiating habits, the lack of virile vigor, and his partiality to vinous flavors, all tended to give him a variegated complexion, but, of course, would not enable him to vanquish his foes.

In the vicinage or vicinity of the viceroy, the visitor will observe the statue of a Turkish vizier: a volume of laws is under his arm, and a singular vesture or drapery is thrown around him. It is said that he used to travel with great velocity in a vehicle which resembled a velocipede, and that his death was eaused by the introduction of a virulent virus into his system.

In a beautiful landscape, the Italian will readily recognize the vetturino and vettura, and also the green verdure of his native country.

Then follows the gigantic voltigeur, who, after much vaunting, was vanquished by his enemy. And also the versatile voyageur, who, after many vicissitudes, died of the vomito in the city of Mexico.

Will the reader pronounce the following words, viz., variegate, vaudeville, vendue, veloce, venture, verbatim, verdigris, verger, vibratile, vide, videlicet, vignette, vindicatory, violone, vis-à-vis, viscid, vise, vitiate, vitiation, vitriol, vivace, viva voce, vive, vulpine, and vulture?

YACHTING.

An English gentleman who was the owner of a beautiful yacht, took great pleasure in being wafted over the blue waves, accompanied by chosen friends possessing similar tastes for aquatic amusements.

About the commencement of the winter solstice, he embarked in his favorite vessel, on a voyage to the Mediterranean. An individual who belonged to the party, and who was no wiseacre, was passionately fond of xylography and xylographic designs.

Another gentleman was quite partial to zootomy, the examination of zoophytes, zoology, and zoological books. As they were wafting on in their course, one of the party caught a xiphias or sword-fish, and after making a wound in its side, took out its windpipe for the purpose of making some experiments.

The winds blew as though they were in great wrath, and seemed to wrestle with the billows over which their vessel continued to waft. On their return from the Mediterranean, while a party in the cabin were enjoying their walnuts and wassail, they passed a xebec, which had withes about the masts that appeared to be colored by xanthine or some other substance.

After an absence of about three months' duration, they arrived in their native land, safe from the perils of the sea.

The following words are omitted in the above exercise, viz., water-cement, weir, windrow, women, xerotes, ycleped, yea, yearling, yesterday, yonker, and zygomatic.

Uses of Iron.

Iron vessels cross the ocean. Iron engines give them motion: Iron needles northward veering, Iron tillers vessels steering; Iron pipe our gas delivers. Iron bridges span our rivers; Iron pens are used for writing. Iron ink our thoughts inditing: Iron stoves for cooking victuals, Iron ovens, pots, and kettles; Iron horses draw our loads. Iron rails compose our roads; Iron anchors hold in sands, Iron bolts, and rods, and bands; Iron houses, iron walls, Iron cannon, iron balls; Iron axes, knives, and chains, Iron augurs, saws, and planes; Iron lightning-rods on spires, Iron telegraphic wires; Iron hammers, nails, and screws-Iron every thing we use.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The pages which follow may be made the bases of many interesting and instructive lessons. The "suggestive questions" which follow each of the subjects, will give some idea of the manner in which they may be treated. In all cases, the more prominent and difficult words should constitute exercises in spelling.

REVIEW OF THE MARKETS.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 18. 1861.

ASHES-The demand is fair and the market steady at $5 561 for Pots, and $5 50 for Pearls.

COTTON—The market is without essential change to-day, the foreign news having no perceptible effect upon prices; the sales embrace about 900 bales; we quote at 57c. for Middling Uplands.

COFFEE—There has been rather more inquiry for Rio, and prices are again higher and very firm; the advance is about ½c.; sales of 1,600 bags at 18½c, for good fair quality. Other kinds are quiet, and mostly held out of the market. Quotations are merely nominal.

COAL—The demand for domestic has been quite active, and prices are firm at §4 @ §5 ₹ ton from yard. The receipts have been liberal for the season. In foreign, the following sales have been effected: 140 tons Gas Cannel at §6 38 @ §6 50; 218 tons Liverpool Steam and 200 tons Liverpool Cannel on private terms.

FLOUR AND MEAL-The inquiry for Western Canal Flour is less active, and the market is 5c. # bbl. lower, with only a limited demand at the concession. The large arrivals, the difficulty of disposing of exchange, and the withdrawal of British orders. eause much depression; the sales include 9,300 bbls. at $5 30 @ $5 45 for superfine State and Western; $5 65 @ 5 70 for extra State; $5 75 @ $5 85 for fancy do.; $5 75 @ 5 85 for the low grades of Western extra; $5 90 @ $6 for extra Round Hoop Ohio, and $6 @ $6 50 for trade brands do. Canadian flour is more plenty, and is dull and lower; the sales are 350 bbls. at $5 35 @ $5 45 for superfine, and $5 65 @ $$6 50 for extras. Southern flour is quiet and easier; sales of 970 bbls. at $5.70 @ $6.20 for mixed to good superfine Baltimore, &c., and $6.30 @ $7.20 for trade brands. Rye Flour is steady, and in limited request; sales of 150 bbls. at $3 15 @ $4 40 for superfine and extra. Buckwheat Flour is quiet at $1 70 @ $2 $ 100tb, the latter rate for choice. Corn Meal is in limited request, but is steady, with moderate sales of Jersey at $3 10. and Brandywine at $3 30.

FRUIT—There has been a very fair demand for Raisins within the last few days, and prices are steady; sales of 5,000 pkgs. Malaga at $3 40 @ $3 45 for Layers, and $3 25 for Bunch; other kinds are quiet; sales at auction of 400 boxes Palermo Lemons at $2 60 @ $4.

FISH-Dry Cod are in little supply, and are firm at $-@$3 75, as to quality. Mackerel are in better supply, and are less active; as to quality. Mackerel are in better supply, and are less active; prices therefore are not quite so firm. Pickled Herring are quiet. Smoked Herring are less active, but rather firmer at 21 @ 23c. for Scaled, and 12 @ 13c. for No. 1.

GRAIN-The Wheat market is less active and 1 @ 2e. $\mathcal{B}$ bush lower, owing to the rapid advance in freights and the difficulty in selling exchange; the sales include 18,700 bush. Chicago Spring at $1 23 @ $1 27; 36,400 bush. Milwaukee Club at $1 29 @ $1 31 2,300 bush. Canada Club at $1 32; 19,300 bush. Amber Iowa and Green Bay at $1 83 (0) $1 35, the latter rate for very handsome Green Bay: 25,800 bush. Red Western at $1 38 @ $1 41; 5,700 bush. Amber State at $1.40; 12,200 bush. Amber Western at $1.42; 4,600 bush. White Ohio and Indiana at $1.47, and 3,100 bush. White Michigan at $1 50. Barley is quiet but steady; sales of 3,200 bush, at 70 @ 77e, for Canada East, and 77e, for good State. Barley Malt is inactive at 80 @ 90c. Oats are in fair supply and lower; sales of some 18,600 bush, at 42 @ 43c, for Accomac County, Va., being the first arrival from the reclaimed territory; 43 @ 43 tc. for Western and Canadian, and 43 to 44c. for State. Rve is in limited demand and lower; sales of 3,700 bush. Jersey at 82 @ 83e. afloat. old Yellow Virginia weevily.

HIDES—The market continues quiet, and we notice no material alteration in prices; we quote Buenos Ayres at 22 @ 23c.; Rio Grande at 21 @ 21½c.; and Oronoco at 20 @ 20½c. The stock on hand is 292,000, against 163,000 same time last year.

HOPS-The market is rather quiet, the demand being confined chiefly to the wants of brewers since the receipt of the startling European news; sales of 100 bales new at 16 @ 22c. for ordinary to prime quality,

IRON-Scotch pig has been in lively demand at $20 50 @ $22, eash, ex ship, and from yard, but at the close most holders are indifferent sellers, unless at a material advance. American Pig has also been in good request at $18 50 @ 20, eash, now held higher. English Sheet is searce, and firm at 4 @ 6e. for singles, doubles and triples, cash.

LEAD--The market is less active, but the supply of all kinds is light, and prices are firm at $7 for Spanish and German; small sales of Galena at $7 25. Bar is inactive at 7c., but Sheet and Pipe are in fair request at Sc., cash.

LEATHER—The market is quiet, though Hemlock Sole has been in a shade better request. We quote Oak Sole, light to heavy, at 26 @ 28c.; Middle do., 27 @ 80c. Hemlock Sole light; Reavy and Middle, 171 @ 22c.

MOLASSES—The market is quiet and we have no important sales to advise. Prices are maintained.

NAVAL STORES have lapsed into a quiet state, and we have but to note sales of 50bbls. Spirits Turpentine, at $1-40, cash. has advanced to $10 for Wilmington.

OILS--Linseed is in moderate request, and prices are quite unsettled sales from Crushers' hands at 81 @ 83c. in easks, and 84 @

86c. in bbl. Other kinds are quiet, but firm.

OIL-CAKE is in fair demand, but the transactions are limited on account of the small stock. The only sales that we can get intelligence from are 25 tons State in bags at $16, each.

OATMEAL continues in moderate request at previous rates; sales of 300 bags State for home use at $1.60 (4.81.65 $1.00 bb.).

PROVISIONS—Pork is in fair demand and the market is steady; sales of 1,150 bbls. at $12.37 @ $12.75 for Mess, $3.574 @ $2 for Prime, and $13 @ $14 for Prime Mess—the latter for city. Beef is in fair request and is firm; sales of 266 bbls. at $11.50 @ $12 for Plain Mess, and $13.50 @ $14 for Extra. Beef Hams are steady and in moderate demand; sales of 150 bbls. at $14.50 @ $12 for Plain Mess, and $13.50 @ $14 for Extra. Beef Hams are steady and in moderate demand; sales of 150 bbls. at $14.75 @ 15. Bacon is in fair request and prices are steady; sales of 770 bbl. at $4 @ 74c. for Western, and 7 @ 8c. for City, part to arrive. Dressed are plenty and in good demand at 44 @ 44c, for Western, and 44 @ 44c. for City Dressed. Lard was dull and heavy early in the day, but subsequently a better inquiry prevailed and the market closed firmer for lots on the spot; sales of 900 bbls. and tee. at $2 @ 44c. Butter is in fair demand and is firm at 16 @ 18c. for fair to good State; 18 @ 22c. for good to prime do.; 15 @ 17c. for Western Reserve Ohio: 124 @ 15c. for Middle and Southern do.; and 15 @ 16c. for Roll. Cheese is fairly active at 7 @ 8c, for State, and 6 @ 64c. for Ohio.

RICE—There has been a fair demand for India, and the market is from \(\frac{1}{2}\) (\(\psi_1\)\(\frac{1}{2}\)c. higher. We hear of sales of 2,000 bags Java eleaned at 5$ (a 6$e., and 50 tes. Carolina at 7 (a 7$e.

SUGARS—The business to-day has been moderate, but prices are very firm; some holders have taken their samples from the market; sales of 200 hhds., mainly Cuba, at 74 @ 83c., and 63 boxes Havana on private terms. Refined are firm at 104 @ 104c. for crushed, powdered and granulated.

SPICES—The market for all kinds is very quiet, but prices are buoyant. We hear of no sales.

SALTPETER—The market has been excited under the belligerent news from Europe, and sales of some 3,200 bags have been made at 15 @ 13c., closing firmly at the latter rate. Nitrate of Soda has been in good demand, and prices have advanced, closing with an upward tendency; sales of 1,500 bags at 5½c, now held at 6e.

SALT—Liverpool ground is in better request, and prices are firmer in consequence of the warlike news from Europe; sales of 3,700 sacks in the ship Thalaba (just arrived) at about 90c; the receipts during the past week of bulk Salt, both from Europe and the West Indies, have been quite liberal, and the latter have declined, but there appears to be less depression at the close.

SHOT are steady and in fair request at Se. for Drop; 3te. for Buck, and 9c. for Bullets, net cash.

SPELTER has been in fair demand, and prices have advanced to 5 te., cash for foreign, closing with an upward tendency.

SEEDS—The market for clover seed is dull, and very little doing, at 74c. 4 bush. Timothy seed is steady, with sales of little note. Linseed is held with great firmness, most of the stock having been drawn from the market, helders are now asking $2 85 @ $2 50 $2 bush. American Roug i Flax is scarce and wanted at improved rates; sales of 500 bush. State at $1.75

TALLOW-The demand is moderate, and the market is somewhat heavy; sales of 20,000th at $9\frac{1}{2}$ (a) $9\frac{2}{3}$ c., cash, the inside rate for prime Western.

WHISKEY is in fair demand, and the market is steady; sales of 800 bbls., at 201 (a 201c.

WOOL-A good demand has prevailed both for domestic and foreign descriptions, and the latter are held with increased firmness at the close, owing to the wallike news from England; the market for all kinds is very firm indeed, and the stock of low and medium fine grades is inadequate to the wants of the trade. High prices are anticipated should war arise between this country and England.

The sales include 250,000 h Native Fleece at 46 @ 52c.; 53,000 h Pulled at 48c.; 150,009 to California at 28 @ 35c. 7,000 to Mexican at 22c.; 3,000 do. * It is often asked why two L's are used in this and the preceding instance. It is probably because Legum is plural.—though the same reason does not seem to have directed other and similar cases. Some contend that the letters represent Legis Legum Doctor-i, e., Doctor of the law of laws,

PROOF MARKS.

Ir is well for all to have some knowledge of the mode of correcting proof. The following will give some insight, into the subject.

- a/ Though a veriety of opinions exist as to the individual by whom the art of printing was first dis- 2 covered; yet all authorities concur in admitting Caps Peter Schoeffer to be the person who invented cast metal types, having learned the art of of cutting the ① letters from the Guttembergs he is also supposed to # have been the first whoengraved on copper plates. /-/ */ The following testimony is preseved in the family, by Jo. Fred. Faustus, of Ascheffenburg: > 'Peter Schoeffer, of Gernsheim, perceiving his S. Can master Fausts design, and (himself being) ardently &. desirous to improve the art, found out (by the good providence of God) the method of cutting (incidendi) stet the characters in a matrix, that the letters might , / easily be singly cast; instead of bieng cut. He ei/ privately cut matrices for the whole alphabet: Faust was so pleased with the contrivance, that he promised Peter to give him his only daughter Fial Christina in marriage, a promise which he soon after performed. no But there were many difficulties at first with as/ Rom. these letters, as there Lad been before with Fial. wooden ones, the metal being too soft to support the force of the im pression: but this defect was soon + remedied, by mixing a substance with the metal a.
 - and when he showed his master the letters cast from these matrices, o which sufficiently hardened it,

DAVIES' NEW UNIVERSITY ARITHMETIC.

PRIMARY ARTHMETIC. This work is constructed on the principle of object teaching. This combinations of numbers are illustrated by sensible objects. The mind of the papil is gradually led, by a series of illustrations, from what is visible and tangible, to the abstract pasperties or numbers. This work is a specimen, in method, averagement, style, and typography, of the new series.

NEW INTELLECTIAL ARITHMETIC. This work is constructed on the principle, that every operation in Arithmetic has reference to the unit i. The whole subject is treated with reference to this fact. The work differs essentially from the one which preceded it. It is, indeed, a new development of the subject, and is confidently commended to the notice of teachers.

designed as a Province Landbetter to the study of Arithmetic. It explains the operation of Arithmetic by Practical Examples, we fully selection of gradestal trembraces the five fundamental rules, common and excimal Fractions, and Denominate Numbers.

PRACTICAL WE IS. "FIG. This work is a carefully revised and improved edition of the New School Arithmetic. Many changes were frankline only in the old work, to bring it into harmony with the other parts of the New Scries. It was, therefore, deemed best to remodel it, and to give to it a new name—that it might not be a defounded with previous editions, and that it might share be many improvements which have been introduced into the New Scries.

tNINERSITY ARITHMETIC. The object of this work is to teach the general principles and school of Numbers, and also to extend their applications, not to change the method of application—these in and should be the same.
